

Svodlun and Stonehammer:

The homeland of the Dwarves this land was populated first by humans in prehistory but was abandoned due to the harshness of the climate. The mountain dwarves eventually colonized it during the age of Ice and Fire and were later killed by their brethren, the Polar Dwarves who at first lived along side them and then massacred them in a civil war. Few remnants of the mountain dwarf line still exist. The land is mostly frozen scrubland and marsh, but has valuable mithril, gems, gold, and silver mines which is what drew the dwarves, as well as majestic mountains. Few, if any, crops are harvested here, though some livestock are kept, mostly deer and caribou. The colors of Svodlun are Blue, White, and Silver.

Capital City- Krodogros: Built by Findenlod, king at the time the mountain dwarves arrived in Roekron, and his two sons Anlod and Fres, the city is a stunning example of clever dwarven design, and is built like a mountain itself, rising ever higher with tiered levels, each walled against the next, creating one of the most formidable strongholds in Roekron. The main palace is located at the center and is the peak of the mountain city. The city is run in a classic Dwarven fashion, with clans each electing a representative to the Dwarven Council who advises the King and Queen of the Dwarven empire.

Provinces and Cities of Svodlun [and rulership]:

1. Svod: [Queen Thresa Svod and King Festi] The main province of Svodlun, this province is governed directly by the king and queen. It has the only farmland of note in Svodlun and the highest population of any other province.
 - a. Krodogros: [Queen Thresa Svod and King Festi] – capital city, see above.
2. Amen Sentris: [Prince Arie Svod and Princess Sabel Fremtine] Critical to the control of Svodlun, the Gap of Sentris is the primary access other than by sea into Svodlun. This province is a heavy mining industry and also a major military power. Primary exports are ore, gemstones, and dwarven crafted items.

- a. Delvis Mithril: [Lord Rocrin Sentris] a mining city where hobbit slave labor was used heavily. Possess some of the best mithril mines and still produces mithril in small amounts.
 - b. Keep of Hragnor: [Prince Arie Svod and Princess Sabel Fremtine] an ancient stronghold of the Dwarves built by Hragnor himself. Guards against attacks through the Hragnor Pass.
 - c. Axiems: [Lady Lesil Sentris and Lord Boro Whitehills] A old lumber town, this city has changed hands so often it makes a policy of remaining neutral during war times as it has often been held by Dagdeoth and has a history of very shady activities.
3. Perch: [Prince Nevil Svod Perch of the Frostfang Veterans, wielder of Dorfindle, and Heir to the thrown of Kraz-Polar in Krodogros], A cruel and bitter province, Perch has little to offer other then solitude. There are no major cities and the only use of Perch is military training in the grueling weather and unforgiving terrain. Perch Town is the home of the Frostfang Veterans, the Elite Dwarven Warriors of Svodlun.
 4. Amen Dagderon [Prince Welkres Svod Olden] A heavily battled for area that is rarely held for long by Svodlun or Dagdeoth, this province is usually given to a powerful warrior as a sign of trust in their ability to hold it. The ruler is usually venerated by the amount of years (or months) they maintained the control of the region. It is currently run by Prince Welkres who is indeed a warrior a great renown, leader of the areas Paladins of Clangedin.
 5. Wood Elven Protectorate: This area is controlled by Lord Orixriel Kerni (Wood Elf from Oriri originally), who leads the repopulation of the northern forest. The area is also required to have Dwarven overseer as the Protectorate is within Svodlun territory and thus Lord Throlis and Lady Ruby Crowmark Unwizaste currently reside within the Protectorate as “Ambassadors” and to keep track of the developments within. The Wood Elven Protectorate is technically a sovereign nation but Svodlun often takes an interest in the ruling of various areas and this causes some tension between the two nations.

Provinces and Cities of Stonehammer [and rulership]:

Stonehammer: Narrowly averting a civil war during the early 16,000’s due to Lord Eric Stonehammer allying with Orks from Blackspire to reveal the use of Orkish slave labor camps deep underground. Due to this conflict, Stonehammer is now considered its own province, and while not officially separate from Svodlun, operates independently.

6. The Stonehammer Hills: [Lord Eric Stonehammer] Another key military position, the Stonehammer Hills are the southern protection for Svodlun.
 - a. Gramion Hold: [Lord Eric Stonehammer and Lady Breanna Gramion] A formidable city which protects from invasion along the Brown Granion. A major trade town as much of the provinces inland supplies must come through here.
 - b. Forgen: [Prince Hod Svod and Lady Agate Greensward] The site of an very old trade city with the Elves, Forgen was built originally as a location to trade mithril with Andinion elves.
7. Olden: [Prince Teleb Svod Olden and Lady Chelse Stonehammer] The major port provinces of Svodlun, dealing mostly in trade and shipping.
 - a. Olden Hold: [Prince Teleb Svod Olden and Lady Chelse Stonehammer] a port city which is the main merchant trade destination as it is the easiest to access without having to brave the polar water of the bay of Krodogros.
8. Ethgritock: The rulership of Ethgritock is heavily disputed between the Dwarves and the Elves. Andinion considers everything south of the Stonehammer Hills part of it’s rulership but the Dwarves believe that Ethgritock was given to them at the time when Forgen was built as part of the treaty with them. Currently it is being governed by Lord Hod Svod in Forgen.
