

Fanwar Online Events! (Fall & Winter 2020)

Fall & Winter Hours – 9:30am-12pm, 1pm-3:30pm, 4pm-6:30pm

Information

Registration: These events are not just signed up for on an individual bases, but rather as a group request. They are organized more like a birthday party or special event, usually with a host or lead parent who sends in this form as a request. This parent or student organizes a group of students or players who want to do an event together. They can either book the space themselves and then gather interested friends, or the players can meet on the Fall & Winter Online Events Meeting Doc to ask friends for the best times and days to get together online. There are a limited number of spaces available. Registration and payment are required to save your spot. To register fill out the registration form and then paste it into an e-mail to christophermelville@fanwar.com. Payment may be sent via PayPal at the above email address, or sent in the mail (PO BOX 149, Graton CA 95444). Make checks payable to Christopher Melville or Fanwar LARP and please write your child's name on the check as well.

Online Calendar: I plan to use the Fanwar Website Calendar to update the days and time that are available for scheduling. When a block of time gets booked, I will update that block of time online so that you can see it is no longer available to request, and you can sign up for a different time or day. Note that requesting a time does not guarantee that space, as I may receive requests for the same time of day and date and have to refuse one or the other.

Type of Quests and Content: Once the date and time have been scheduled with me, the planned mission is either sent along to me as well, or the players may decide that they want me to pick something in the story that their characters then do. If no specific quest is requested, I will select a quest for them which they will then do that day.

Reminder: Students need to be familiar with the game and how to play it if they are going to succeed at online FANWAR LARP. The online space is not designed to teach the entire game system, which is better suited to being learned in person on via the videos and rule book. If a new player wants to join and be in a group, this is not a problem, but the training in the core elements of the game are not covered in detail by me and should be learned from other students or the online rule book or videos available.

Cost: The cost for a private event with me is $40 per player, with a five-player minimum to book a time slot. Note, if you would like a smaller group size, this can be done, but the rates do not change. You would thus have to pay for the "empty seats." Similarly, if you do not want the full 2.5 hours, you could ask another group to join you on that time slot, and then just have one half the group meet for the first hour. For example, if five students want to do a short project for an hour, and another seven want to solve some riddles together, instead of booking two separate 2.5 hours slots, they could decide to book one as a group of twelve, and then split the time as they see fit, listening in on each other's project, cheering each other on, or simply only showing up for the time their project is being done. Keep in mind that this does not change the rates, as I still have to prepare for two separate stories or projects.

What programs/apps will you need: www.roll20.net and www.discord.com are the two resources we use to keep our games running. Your child will need an account on each. Both computer programs are free.
